

Privacy Statement

When you come to the Haley & Aldrich, Inc. website, we log your current Internet address, the type of operating system you use, and type of browser software used. We also track which areas of our website you visit. This information helps us improve our website and ensure that the information you need is easy to access.

We do not disclose your personal information to other companies who intend to sell their products or services to you. We will never sell your name or e-mail address to a direct-marketing company.